

Eye Have a Mentor

Weekly Report 12/3/18 to 12/9/18

This week in ISM, the goal was to find a mentor, work on the Original Work, have the fifth interview, and update the Digital Portfolio. Even though this week was extremely eventful with outside of school activities, along with athletics and ISM assignments, the work ethic was very focused and tailored toward completing everything on time and in a thorough manner.

To begin the week, an interview occurred with Dr. Yee, an optometrist from Avant Garde Optometry. Dr. Yee was able to elaborate on her experience of being both a business owner and a doctor in Frisco. Dr. Yee's office was decorated and filled with various colors. By far, her office is the favorite one out of all the interviews. Dr. Yee explained how taking her love for fashion is the perfect twist for her profession. In optometry, glasses can be personal and fit to the style of the patient. In addition to having a successful fifth and final interview, a mentor was solidified this week. Dr. Carey Brooks agreed to be my mentor for ISM and work with me throughout this journey. The reason this individual would be a great mentor is because her business is family owned, she is very passionate about working in a positive field, and she also agreed to collaborate on the Original Work, during the interview. This week, an email was sent to Dr. Brooks, regarding what ISM is and responsibilities she will have to undertake as a mentor. All that is left is the background check, and then we can soon work together, in order to make the Original Work and Final Product a success.

Also, the Digital Portfolio had to be published by the end of the week. By working on the website during class and making the changes that were desired, the Digital Portfolio is something that I am proud of. Considering technology is not a strength, the Digital Portfolio goes beyond my needs and expectations. Being able to physically see all the hard work put into one link online is satisfying because it seems that everything is beginning to come together for the first time.

The final goal for this week was to work on the Original Work and log at least four hours of productivity. However, with the busyness of the week's schedule, working on the Original Work was not a task completed. In order to recuperate from this, at least eight hours of work will need to be logged. This will probably include beginning the paper for which I will need to present to either FISD administration or an elementary school principal. Also, this may include starting a contact log of all the people that will need to be connected in order to start this drive. Ideally, the drive would be approved in the Fall and executed in the Spring.

Going into next week, multiple assessments will need to be written, ones that cover all the details from the interviews conducted. This week also includes creating a Display Board plan and working on the Original Work. With Original Work conferences this week, I will need to have some progress completed and have tried to reach out to Dr. Brooks, in order to get some guidance and order on how to make this drive a success.
